

For designer and artist José Lévy the Fontainebleau collection is a very personal project, since he designed the outdoor furniture for his own country house near Fontainebleau. "I love the natural environments here, but I am also very attracted by the vibrant city of Paris, just a one hour drive away. I am very intrigued by the way nature can be implemented in the city." Designed to fit in both environments, the Fontainebleau collection consists of six individual elements: a sofa, a chair, a stool, a round table, a daybed and a side table. All considered to create small architectural compositions meeting the different functions of a living room in a garden: rest, eat, work and play. Alone or with others.

JOSÉ LÉVY

José Lévy is a Parisian artist and a traveller who navigates with talent and whimsical poetry between fashion, decorative arts, design and museum installations. His field of operation is diverse. Faithful to the human spirit and the person as a starting point, this remains the driving force behind all his projects. Designer of unique and intimate objects, José Lévy weaves links between his creations and their recipients. He infuses his work with a singular sense of rigour and imagination, re-creating his own or borrowed memories. Winner of the Villa Kujoyama, Grand Prix of the City of Paris and Knight of Arts and Letters, he designs for an audience keen on both stories of the past and new horizons. José Lévy collaborates with renowned art and design gallery publishers: Hermès, Perrotin, Carpenters Workshop Gallery, Cristalleries Saint-Louis, Diptyque, Astier de Villatte, Manufacture de Sévres, etc. He has exhibited in several solo shows around the world: at the Musée Guimet and the Musée de la Chasse in Paris. Lévy has also collaborated with the Petit Palais, Palais de Tokyo, and Villa Kujoyama in Kyoto.

As a designer José Lévy has no celebrity ambitions creating objects that draw all the attention. On the contrary, Lévy loves to create functional objects that are neither boring nor bling bling. "I never impose a single strategy to use my designs. I enjoy watching others interpreting my work. I provide the letters for people to create their own words. Anyone is free to create a very own universe with the furniture." A universe that is not strictly limited to those sunny summer days. Both the material - steel - and the colour - a deep shade of green - allow the Fontainebleau collection to stay outside, even in winter. "I love the way these items blend in with nature."

The perforations in the steel surfaces lead to a very light and modular collection that can easily be moved according to different occasions. "Those little dots in the surface can also evoke a play of shadow and light, especially when placed under a tree", Lévy adds. To ensure an optimal relaxing comfort the collection was equipped with two different types of cushions: firm ones for the seats and softer ones to linger around back- and armrests. "As if you would take your own pillow from the bed and bring it into your garden."
